OUR HISTORY

Founded in 1976, the Organization of Black Aerospace Professionals is a nonprofit organization dedicated to the encouragement and advancement of minorities in all aviation and aerospace careers.

The organization quickly became a prominent advocate and thought leader for improving conditions industry-wide. OBAP's early leadership helped to increase available pilot positions and opportunities for blacks and elevated the civil rights issue to a higher priority for government officials nationwide.

OBAP continues to change lives by creating pathways to success through educating youth, communities, and professionals—shaping an aerospace industry as diverse as the people we serve.

By supporting OBAP, you become a part of a deep legacy of service and success, advancing our cause of increasing diversity within the aerospace industry, and equipping professionals for successful, lifelong careers.

OUR IMPACT

LAUNCHING CAREERS CHANGING LIVES

Underrepresented/minority populations are not participating in Aerospace careers commensurate with their white counterparts, particularly in engineering,¹ and the aircraft pilot workforce.² A lack of access to quality career and work opportunities has numerous negative consequences on individuals and thereby their families and communities.

“Low-wage workers live in a vicious cycle that prevents them from moving up. Many work multiple jobs. The associated stress undermines mental and physical health. Indeed, that stress lowers cognitive functioning, creating a “bandwidth tax” equal to a loss of 13 IQ points. Performance suffers as it is harder to keep up good attendance, focus on the job, be productive, and do your best for customers or coworkers. Unsurprisingly, these workers find it hard to climb the ladder of opportunity that this country has historically provided.”³

Furthermore, a lack of diversity in the aerospace industry only stands to weaken the United States’ position of pre-eminence within the field.⁴ By failing to promote STEM and related disciplines to underrepresented populations, we only further contribute to the problem.⁴

“An individual who is equipped with the skills to identify and begin a career in the aerospace industry, will have better opportunities to improve the quality of life for themselves, their families, and communities.”

We believe that a career in the aerospace industry creates a pathway that can help to significantly reduce the likelihood of individuals experiencing these effects. In a supporting relationship, increasing diversity within an industry has the effect of serving our communities and being socially responsible by maintaining a workforce that is reflective of the American society, increasing innovation through a diversity of ideas challenging the status quo, and increasing the return on investment of human capital by reaching out broadly to all communities where talent exists.⁵

Our goal is to ensure that individuals in target populations are equipped with the skills to successfully pursue a career in the aerospace industry. The Aerospace industry continues to grow and provide career opportunities for candidates with the requisite skill sets. Additionally, these careers offer wages that consistently exceed that of national averages.⁶

“An individual who is equipped with the skills to identify and begin a career in the aerospace industry will have better opportunities to improve the quality of life for themselves, their families, and communities.”

OUR GOALS

LAUNCHING CAREERS CHANGING LIVES

OBAP endeavors to expose underrepresented populations to aerospace career opportunities by providing targeted educational, professional development, and mentoring programs. Our goals can be summarized as follows:

- To motivate youth to become educationally prepared for life
- To increase the number of underrepresented minorities and women professionals in aerospace and related industry careers
- To advocate for the concerns of our membership and constituencies
- To be at the forefront of crucial conversations that include minorities and women, or lack thereof, in executive leadership positions or on governing boards

OUR APPROACH

WORKFORCE DEVELOPMENT

Our workforce development model affirms and supports:

- Exposure to aerospace careers can help initiate an individual's desire to pursue a career in the Aerospace industry.
- Aerospace careers require average to above average specialized skills and preparation, which necessitates economic, academic, social, and career support resources.
- Mentoring programs have a net positive impact on personal attitudes, motivation, behaviors, relationships, health, and career outcomes.

To move our mission forward, we will focus on:

- Building Awareness: We activate a network of over 2500 aerospace professionals to participate in school visits on a national level. We inform students about aerospace career tracks, and more importantly illustrate successful pathways.
- Preparing for Success: We've built several programs intended to address each learning phase from Elementary through College and beyond, to provide exposure to aerospace concepts, opportunities to build skills, and connect with mentors to help guide the way.
- Advocacy: We work hard to form relationships with industry partners to ensure our voice is heard on behalf of our members and the communities we serve. Through our partnerships, we have opportunities to steer the conversation and reinforce the positive effects of diversity.
